The death of Steve Jobs, his passing on October 5, 2011, sent shockwaves across the tech world, particularly within companies that had grown to depend on him. There are many ways to describe Jobs's impact on the world of technology. To put it briefly, he changed the face of computing. He did it from first principles. He was a huge believer in user experience and in empowering his customers with technology that would enable them to use it in entirely new ways. He also had a highly developed sense of aesthetics, a clear sense of who he was and what he wanted to accomplish. Jobs also understood one of the key differences between the industries of hardware and software. He, like others before him, understood that for a great deal of the early software that came from the computer science world, it was a set of concepts and ideas that had to be married to the technology available at the time. For this reason, Apple, which Jobs founded, was always a software company. There was no hardware to use, so hardware was typically an afterthought. It had to be good software. Not only were hardware decisions more than a luxury, they were critical. Hardware is expensive and it is not something you can toss out every two years. It is a key differentiator that makes people want to buy a Mac instead of a PC. Apple's software has always been a ca3bfb1094

A group of students showed their support and sang "Hava Nagila" at the front of a line of buses in a demonstration of solidarity.Officials said conditions have improved enough for them to accept more people from New Orleans.People are being evacuated from their homes and they are waiting for buses to take them to temporary shelters.The first bus carrying evacuees rolled into Uniondale in the early afternoon, and will be departing shortly.In a shift from plans that were first announced on Sunday, the buses will also be transporting people with nowhere to stay.The plan to take in more evacuees has changed because of "logistical and technical issues," according to the Nassau County Executive. People will be brought to a temporary shelter in Mineola.The buses will take people to a Uniondale facility for evacuees to get showers and food. There are plenty of vending machines and hot showers.The expectation is the buses will arrive around 5 p.m. If you are being evacuated, get to the area well ahead of time. As the buses roll in, there will be overflow parking.To make a reservation for a bus, you can go to Sunday, the first buses arrived in the middle of the night and left at 6 a.m. They were so crowded there were some injuries. People were putting their heads through the windows. About 3,000 were taken to the temporary shelter in Mineola. Officials have said there are many more people that don't have homes to go to.Q: Unable to make dynamic radio button using angularjs and input type=radio I am new to AngularJS.I am trying to make a list of 10 radio buttons and trying to give a div class which are checked on load.I want that to change with jquery on-select of radio button. The PDF Import function is part of AutoCAD 2020, which is required to import PDFs. If you don't have the AutoCAD 2020 license, you can use Markup Assist to quickly send PDFs to AutoCAD. After you import a PDF, any annotations made on the page or printed in the PDF are synchronized with your drawing. Video: 1:15 min. Integrated Retexture Manager: Save time working with the Integrated Retexture Manager (IRM), which lets you draw smooth, animated curves, splines and pipes directly in your drawings without first creating a proxy shape. (video: 1:37 min.) IRM is available in AutoCAD for both Windows and Mac OS, and AutoCAD LT for Windows. New Spline Curves and Pipes: Use spline curves and pipes to easily create edges, shaded or textured surfaces and extrude. (video: 1:47 min.) Spline curves, which are intelligent shapes that curve naturally, are more flexible than lines for creating curved edges. With the new Spline Curves command, you can also use spline curves to blend into other objects, rather than creating messy line segments. Video: 1:47 min.
